

ABSTRACT

Region data and graphics data for a remoting system are synchronously gathered and sent to a remote display while maintaining synchronicity between the region data and the graphics data. In one implementation, synchronized region data and synchronized graphics data are gathered into one display driver. For the remote display, incoming region data precedes corresponding synchronized graphics data so that the graphics data is displayed according to synchronous region data.